I'm writing this while sitting in the middle of our missionary training program waiting for my turn to speak. Whenever I have the opportunity to participate in this training, it always reminds me of the time Tina and I launched into ministry. I remember the butterflies in my stomach from the realization that we're about to meet with strangers and ask them to partner with us in missions work. That wasn't only foreign to me, but scary. The thought of going on to a secular university of 30,000 students to talk about whether or not they know Jesus was overwhelming too. Now it's the thought of moving back to California and planting a church, whoa, we must be crazy.

But, the reality of being able to lead those who don't know our Savior into a relationship with Him, is more than enough to keep us on the mission field pushing past the challenges that present themselves.

I'm sitting in the back of this training looking at these eight recent college graduates thinking of the potential to engage the college campus culture with the Gospel.

You're a vital part of this training. You're a part in training and equipping these young missionaries to reach students on the college campus.

You're also a part of our future church plant in Long Beach. In Philippians, Paul talked about the generosity of the church in Philippi. He said, "Not that I seek the gift itself, but I seek for the profit which increases to your account." He was saying that when they gave, it was much more than meeting physical needs. The increase in profit was the eternal value of changed lives resulting from Paul's missionary work and their giving. The same is true for us today. Your generosity is giving opportunity for lives to be touched by Jesus everyday as we work in the mission field together.

Thank you for making this possible. We can't wait to come home to California and see God move in so many ways!

Blessings,

Paul & Tina
